

Energy does not flow in the wires, but parallel to them.

Energy enters into the resistor, where the surface charge goes from positive to negative at a rate of  $P = I^2R$ .

Energy flow goes from both terminals of the DC battery to the load and never returns to the battery.

